Chrysler Strike Is Settled; 85,000 to Return to Plants

Union Wins Right to Represent Only Its Members at Chrysler

PEACE FOR A YEAR

Michigan Governor Next Moves to Settle Hudson and Reo Strikes

By the Associated Press

Labor's brightest picture in many weeks was painted Wednesday as 85,000 workers, directly and indirectly affected by the month-old Chrysler corporation strike, stood ready to march back to their jobs.

An agreement between Chrysler and the United Automobile Workers of America was signed at Lansing, Mich., Tuesday night.

Homer Martin, international president of the union, indicated in a statement that sit-down strikes in Michigan's automobile plants were at an end.

By the Associated Press

Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan announced Tuesday night that an agreement has been reached ending the Chrysler automobile strike and that it provides for recognition by the corporation of the United Automobile

No Company Unions
WASHINGTON—(AP)—Majority Leader Robinson disclosed Wednesday he would ask the senate to condemn company unions and "any other unfair labor practices" together with the sit-down strike. The resolution he had prepared denounced sit-downs as "illegal and contrary to sound public policy."

Workers of America as the collective bargaining agency of its members employed by the firm.

The union, claiming that 50,000 of the 67,000 Chrysler corporation employees were members, had asked for sole bargaining rights and called the strike when this demand was rejected. The terms also provided the governor said, that the corporation "will not aid, promote or finance any labor group or organization" or any other union which might "undermine" the U. A. W. A.

In return, the union pledged that it would call no sit-down strikes nor permit its members to engage in any in Chrysler plants for the duration of the compact, which extends to March 31.

To Be No "Coercion"
The union agreed also that "neither it nor its members will intimidate or coerce employees" and also not to solicit members on corporation time or plant property.

Both sides mutually agreed the term "employee" should not include foremen, assistant foremen, timekeepers, plant protection employees or confidential salaried employees.

Negotiations will open in Detroit Thursday, April 8, to arrive at a supplementary agreement disposing of issues not treated in the settlement. The U. A. W. A. pledged to terminate the present strike immediately and the corporation promised to reopen its closed plant "as soon as possible," agreeing to "reemploy as rapidly as possible employees now on strike." They will return to "their usual work without discrimination against them for participating in the strike, and in accordance with seniority rules of the corporation now in effect."

Both parties agreed to take steps to wipe out litigation pending over the strike.

The agreement followed conferences with officials of the United Automobile Workers of America, Chief John L. Lewis of the Committee for Industrial Organization and Chairman Walter P. Chrysler of the auto manufacturing firm.

85,000 Affected
Settlement of the strike, called March 8, will return approximately 65,000 Chrysler workers and some 20,000 employees of dependent parts manufacturers to their jobs.

Governor Murphy announced he was sending invitations to officials of the Reo Motor Car company, Lansing, and the Hudson Motor Car company, at Detroit, as well as union officials, to meet with him to try to effect settlements of strikes in those plants.

He said he would ask them to reach agreements similar to that arranged between the Chrysler Corporation, one of the three largest automobile producers in the United States, and the union.

Governor Murphy praised the conciliatory attitudes of Chrysler and Lewis and thanked James F. Dewey, federal labor conciliator, who participated in the conferences.

As Sit-Downers Walked Out of Dodge Plant, Paving Way for Strike Settlement

Bedclothing and personal belongings bundled in their arms, 5,000 strikers in the Chrysler-owned Dodge auto plant in Detroit are shown leaving the scene of their long sitdown strike. The evacuation followed a truce arranged by Gov. Frank Murphy, John L. Lewis, CIO leader, and Walter P. Chrysler, head of the Chrysler Corporation. However, the Dodge workers remained in the plant until word was flashed that other strikers in the Detroit Chrysler plants had quit the sitdown.

Hartsfield Barn Burns; Save Stock

J. S. Hartsfield Loses Building, Corn, Hay, Gasoline Engines

The barn of J. S. Hartsfield, seven miles north of Hope on the Bluffs road, was destroyed by fire early Tuesday morning, causing a loss estimated by the owner at $500. The barn was not insured.

The barn was discovered in flames about 5 a. m. Several head of livestock was removed in safety. Among the contents destroyed were 100 bushels of corn, 200 bales of hay, two gasoline engines, several bushels of cottonseed, 60 bushels of peanuts and several loads of loose oats.

Mr. Hartsfield was at a loss to explain the origin of the blaze.

Tomlinson Chosen Head of Mo. Pac.

Succeeds Late O. P. Van Sweringen as Chairman of the Board

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—(AP)—George A. Tomlinson, 68, shipper and a leading figure in the railroad empire amassed by the Van Sweringen brothers, was elected chairman of the Missouri Pacific railroad Tuesday to succeed the late O. P. Van Sweringen.

Tomlinson also was named chairman of the board of the Gulf Coast Lines, a subsidiary of Missouri Pacific, also headed by O. P. Van Sweringen until his death last November. Tomlinson had served as a director of both roads. Missouri Pacific was a major link in the great transportation network put together by the late Brothers, O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen.

Tomlinson became an important part of the Van Sweringen operations in 1935 when, with G. A. Ball of Music, Ind., he put up money which enabled the brothers, through Midamerica Corp., to regain securities which controlled their railroad empire.

Midamerica, financed by Ball and Tomlinson, acquired the securities at a New York Auction. Since then Ball had purchased most of Tomlinson's interest in the corporation.

Party's Nominees Elected by City

Hope Goes Through Formality of City General Election

Democratic nominees chosen in the November primary were elected without opposition Tuesday in the Hope general election as follows: Albert Graves, mayor, second term; W. K. Lemley, municipal judge, second term; Charles Reynerson, city treasurer, third term; Carter Johnson, alderman, Ward 1, second term; Kenneth G. Hamilton, alderman, Ward 2, second term; Roy Johnson, alderman, Ward 3, second term; Charles Taylor, alderman, Ward 4, fourth term.

Good Homes Group to Meet Friday

County Organization Will Hold Second Session in City Hall

The second meeting of the committees making plans for the county-wide Better Homes campaign will be held in the council room of Hope city hall Friday at 10 a. m.

National Better Homes Week is sponsored by the Research Foundation of Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind. The keynote of the campaign in Arkansas this year is "cultural happiness," and our slogan "Education for Living" according to Mrs. W. F. Lake, State Better Homes Chairman. Mrs. Lake stated that we can achieve these ideals through the seven "R's": Radiance, radio, recreation, rehabilitation, regenerate, renovate, and regulate.

Plans are being made for a county-wide meeting for April 29, according to Melva Bullington, county chairman.

House Damaged Little by Fire on W. 7th St.

A residence on West Seventh street, near Fair Park, was damaged by fire at 11:30 a. m. Wednesday when sparks from a trash fire ignited the roof. Damage was estimated by firemen to be $10. Firemen did not obtain the name of the occupant of the house.

Refunding Hearing Delayed by Holt

Attorney General Has to Attend Funeral at Hour of Court Trial

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The hearing in the W. G. Scougle injunction suit against Governor Bailey's 150-million-dollar highway bond refunding program, originally set for Wednesday morning in Chancellor Dodge's court, was temporarily postponed by the absence from the city of Attorney General Jack Holt.

Holt advised the court it was necessary for him to go to Pine Bluff to attend the funeral services of the late B. W. Wilson, former assistant U. S. prosecutor.

Attorneys conferred on the possibility of opening the hearing late Wednesday afternoon or Thursday morning.

Leo McLaughlin Again Spa Mayor

Overwhelmingly Elected to Sixth Term as Hot Springs' Executive

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—(AP)—Hot Springs voters overwhelmingly endorsed the administration of Mayor Leo P. McLaughlin Tuesday night as they returned him to office for his sixth consecutive term.

The vote, complete in all eight wards, gave McLaughlin a total of 4609 votes to 209 for his opponent, attorney and former representative Elmer Tackett. McLaughlin carried every ward by a large majority.

Million-Dollar Fire Hits City of Manila

MANILA, P. I.—(AP)—A million-dollar fire swept over more than one and a half square miles of the thickly populated Tondo district Wednesday, leaving more than 10,000 persons homeless, one dead and 11 injured.

City of Hope to Study Extension of Electric Line

Believe Municipal Plant Will Undertake Rural Electrification

CHANGES REQUIRED

Junk Yards and Mule Barns Are Again Discussed by City Council

The Hope municipal water and light plant can extend its light lines into rural sections of Hempstead county by meeting certain specifications of the Arkansas Utilities commission, Mayor Albert Graves and Alderman Carter Johnson reported to the city council Tuesday night.

Mayor Graves and Mr. Johnson conferred with the State Utilities commission last week at Little Rock relative to a proposed move to extend the municipal lines into rural Hempstead county.

While no definite action was taken Tuesday night on the proposal, it was the belief of Mayor Graves that the city soon would launch a rural electrification project that would include an area of several miles from Hope.

The city would be required to meet the same requirements that a private corporation would in extending its lines, Mayor Graves said.

A representative of the Williams Lumber company, asked the council for permission to use Fair Park as a baseball field this summer. The request was referred to the City Park commission. There was no debate.

City Attorney W. S. Atkins told the council that the present city ordinance on junk yards had no provision for the removal of junk yards on complaint of citizens who lived near the junk yard. He said, however, that if the Board of Health condemned a junk yard, an ordinance then could be drawn to force removal of a junk yard.

A contract to audit the city records was awarded to Hennigan, Croft & Fuller. The audit is expected to begin the latter part of April.

An ordinance that would prohibit mule barns in the city, unless two-thirds of the citizens living within a certain distance from the barn approved of it, was read once before the council. Further action is expected at the next meeting of the council.

Another Law Dean Raps Court Plan

Would Be Blow to Constitutional Democracy, Says Fordham Man

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Ignatius M. Wilkinson, dean of Fordham university law school, declared Wednesday that the Roosevelt court program was dangerous to the continuance of constitutional democracy.

"Its ultimate effects will tend to undermine the independence of the supreme court and, indirectly, of all the courts," he said in a statement prepared for the senate judiciary committee. The administration bill, he said, seeks to create vacancies in the supreme court to enable the president to appoint justices who would be responsive to his views on social legislation.

Holy Land Photos at Baptist Church

Rev. W. R. Hamilton to Give Illustrated Lecture, Wednesday Night

A pictorial travelogue of a voyage to the Mediterranean will open a series of illustrated lectures Wednesday night at First Baptist church.

For four Wednesday nights, in connection with the mid-week service, the Rev. William R. Hamilton will show stereoscopic pictures of the Mediterranean Borderlands. The pictures Wednesday night will carry the audience on a voyage from America to Azores Islands, Portugal, Gibraltar, and Algiers.

The fact that in so-called civilized times some ancient heathen practices still continue to be carried out, will be testified to by the pictures of an African "bleeder" drawing the blood of the "patient" in a supposed effort to bring about a cure of some malady. Mr. Hamilton made these candid photographs a few years ago while in Algiers. Later lectures will show scenes of the Apostles Paul's labors in the ancient Graeco-Roman world, and the closing lecture of this series will conduct the audience into Egypt.

The midweek service will be held in the adult department assembly room of the educational building of the church from 7:45 to 8:30 p. m. The church extends to the public a cordial invitation to attend this and every Wednesday night.

Chancellor Bacon Is Critically Ill of Heart Attack

Sixth District Chancery Judge Stricken at Texarkana Law Office

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Drives Car Home After First Attack, But Suffers Two Later Ones

Chancery Judge Pratt P. Bacon, about 60, suffered three heart attacks at Texarkana Wednesday morning and was in a critical condition at the Pine Street hospital at Texarkana Wednesday afternoon.

Apparently in good health, Judge Bacon early Wednesday drove to his office, where he was first stricken about 9:30 a. m. He recovered sufficiently to drive his car home.

When he reached his residence it was decided to remove him to the hospital. An ambulance was called. En route to the hospital he suffered a second attack, the third following soon after arrival at the hospital.

Judge Bacon is chancery judge of the sixth district, composed of Miller, Hempstead, Nevada, Clark, Little River, Howard, Pike, Sevier and Polk counties.

He succeeded C. E. Johnson on the chancery bench when the latter was elected chief justice of the Arkansas supreme court. Judge Bacon filled Judge Johnson's unexpired chancery term and then was elected for a six-year term. Judge Bacon had served as chancery judge about five years.

He is a brother of E. N. Bacon of Hope.

News that Judge Bacon had been stricken ill caused Hempstead circuit court at Washington to be recessed several hours Wednesday. Judge Bacon's daughter was serving as court stenographer at Washington. She left immediately after learning that her father was ill.

Another court stenographer was not available, and court was recessed until Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Hendrix, of Patmos, Succumbs

Dies at 72 at New Home at Buckner—Funeral at Patmos Tuesday

Mrs. V. M. Hendrix, 72, died Monday at her home in Buckner. She had been ill several months. Mrs. Hendrix formerly lived at Patmos, moving to Buckner only a few years ago. Funeral services were held from the Christian church at Patmos at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Hartsell.

She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Jeff Mitchell of Patmos, Mrs. John Bailey, of Idabel, Okla.; Miss Violet Hendrix of Buckner, and Mrs. Gladys Hapton of Patmos.

The national poultry improvement plan, founded by the Department of Agriculture to establish uniform standards and grades of hatching eggs and chicks, is used in 41 states.

MIND Your MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. When a man knows that a woman never smokes, should he offer her a cigarette whenever he smokes one himself?
2. If someone offers you a cigarette and you prefer your own brand, is it all right to say so?
3. When a girl goes out with a man, should she smoke her own cigarettes or his?
4. Should a woman ever say, "I was introduced to him"?
5. Does a woman usually offer her hand to a man when they are introduced?
6. What would you do to—
a. A good friend of yours introduces you to a man she has talked about for weeks—
(a) Say, "So you're Bob Brown?"
(b) Say, "How do you do?"
(c) Say, "I'm so glad to know you. Elizabeth has talked about you so much?"

- Answers
1. No.
2. Yes.
3. Either way.
4. No, because he was introduced to her.
5. Only if she chooses.
6. Best "What Would You Do" solution—(b). (If you value Elizabeth's friendship.)

Turned Brown

By Brown Turner

DALLAS, Texas.—Don't care how big a town gets, there are always more people on the streets on Saturday than any other day, and now that the government's sort of worked it down to where it can tell you when it's going to rain, a survey around here, yesterday, indicated most folks are willing to take the government's word on the weather if the government'll develop a sure cure for corns. They're so busy around here preparing for the opening of the fair in June they won't stop long enough to drink two beers at one sitting. It's going to be a Pan American exposition this time but won't be complete unless they exhibit an Arkansas bear and a Tennessee bride.

National Tour to Pass Through City

AAA Motor Caravan Will Visit Hope April 16 on State Tour

Hope is included on the itinerary of the American Automobile association tour of Arkansas, which begins next week, it was announced by Harvey Booth, traffic supervisor for the State Highway Commission, who was a visitor in Hope Tuesday.

Booth said the tour is being financed by the Arkansas Centennial Commission. Approximately 50 representatives of traffic bureaus from all parts of the United States will tour this state.

The delegation will travel by bus and cars. The group will meet in St. Louis April 11. The following day the tour brings them into northwest Arkansas, spending the night at Harrison. The itinerary follows:

April 12—Eureka Springs, Rogers, Fayetteville, Fort Smith.

April 14—From Fort Smith to Hot Springs.

April 15—Norman, Ouachita National forest, Murfreesboro, Nashville and Texarkana.

April 16—From Texarkana to Fulton, Hope, Emmet, Prescott, Gurdon, Malvern and Pine Bluff.

April 17—Pine Bluff to Little Rock, West Memphis, Blytheville. The next day the group will leave the state.

The group will be accompanied by William McComb, acting manager of the Arkansas Automobile club, and Harvey Booth, traffic supervisor of the Arkansas Highway Commission.

P-T. A. Officers Chosen for '37-38

Events of Past School Year Reviewed by Unit Presidents

The Parent Teacher Council, the members of which consist of representatives from the four P-T. A. units of the city, met Tuesday afternoon at the city hall.

Mrs. Finley Ward, chairman of the nominating committee reported the appointment of the following officers for the school year of 1937 and 1938: Mrs. Edwin Dossett, president; Mrs. Walter Carter, vice president; Mrs. Henry Haynes, secretary; Mrs. Glen Williams, treasurer; Mrs. John Guthrie, historian.

Complete reports of the school year's work were given by the president of the units. The outstanding achievements as reported by Mrs. Walter Carter, Mrs. Edwin Dossett, Mrs. John Ramsey and Mrs. George Dadds, were library, sponsoring Girl Scout movement, playground activities, lunch room for underweight pupils, and clothing for needy children.

Mrs. Dorsey McRae, council president, reported a year of successful work. Symbolic of the year's achievements was a large four-leaf clover placed on a bulletin board, each leaf bearing the projects of the four P-T. A's. The stem represented the cooperation of the officers which Mrs. McRae praised very highly. This spirit explains the Hope associations' being rated as Superior Organizations over a period of several years.

Corsages of lovely spring flowers were presented by Mrs. McRae in appreciation for their work for the year. To Mrs. Walter, president of Junior-Senior P. T. A.; Mrs. Edwin Dossett, President of Oglesby P. T. A.; Mrs. John Ramsey, president of Paisley P. T. A.; Mrs. George Dadds, president of Brookwood P. T. A., and Mrs. Walter E. Briggs, secretary of the council.

The meeting in Ashdown on April 1, of the P. T. A. association of District 13, was reported by Mrs. C. D. Lester. The next meeting and the last one of this school year, will be a picnic at the Fair Park on May 4. The teachers will be guests of the council.

Unmasked Bandit Pair Get $6,000 to $7,000 and Escape

Swift and Quiet Robbery Carried Out at Closing Hour Wednesday

3 LOCKED IN VAULT

Bandits Drop Hint They're Arkadelphia-Bound—Drive Toward Hope

PRESCOTT, Ark.—Two unmasked men held up the First State Bank of Prescott at one minute before 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon locked three members of the bank staff in the vault, and escaped with between $6,000 and $7,000.

The robbers dropped a hint they were headed for Arkadelphia, but a Ford car believed to be the holdup machine was seen driving out of Prescott toward Hope—and police authorities telephoned Hope and Fulton in an effort to cut off the escape.

One of the bandits was a tall man, and the other a short one—but that was all the description that could be given police immediately.

The pair entered the bank at one minute before closing time and ordered Cashier E. M. Sharp and his two assistants, Mrs. Jim Cole and E. L. Harrison, into the big vault, locking the door on them.

After ransacking the tellers' cages, the robbers made their escape. It was a quiet and quickly dispatched bank holdup.

The bank's books had not been balanced at 3:45 o'clock, but the loss was believed to be between $6,000 and $7,000.

The three in the vault were rescued immediately after the robbery.

Gen. Mola Breaks Government Lines

Federals Routed, Leaving Munitions and Wounded, Say Insurgents

VICTORIA, Spain.—(AP)—Insurgent General Emilio Mola's troops were reported Wednesday to have smashed through the government's lines on the Durango front in northern Spain, inflicting "terrible losses."

An insurgent communique said the government militiamen were falling back in fierce mountain fighting, leaving vast munitions supplies and hundreds of casualties.

Italy May Act
ROME, Italy.—(AP)—Government-controlled newspapers, reiterating charges that other nations have violated the international "hands off Spain" agreement, hinted Wednesday that Italy might take serious "counter action."

New Lion Test of Highest Gravity

Shuler Wildcat Near El Dorado 41 Gravity, Finest Oil in State

EL DORADO, Ark.—The Edna Morgan Oil Refining company in section 18-18-17 in the new Shuler area west of El Dorado was holding its own in production late Tuesday after having been completed Monday afternoon for a big producer from an entirely new deep sand.

The well is making a strong flow of both oil and gas with no signs of salt water. Since its completion there has been an increase in the gas pressure of the well, which has cut down on the oil flow.

The well Tuesday was producing through a choke 19-64 of an inch in size because of the tremendous gas pressure and was producing 250 barrels of high gravity oil and 3,500,000 cubic feet of gas through the choke.

The increased showing of the gas was taken as a favorable showing by officials of the Lion company. Gas pressure on the casing was reported to be 1,865 pounds and pressure on the tubing was reported at 1,650 pounds.

The gravity of the oil is the same as obtained in drill stem tests which is slightly higher than 41 degrees, the highest gravity oil yet produced in south Arkansas with the exception of the distillate produced in the new deep sand wells in the Snow Hill area of the Smackover field in Ouachita county.

Texas Tragedy Is Taste of Horror War Brings

AFTER all these years, the chap who didn't know the gun loaded is still the fellow who does most of the damage.

We can watch out for the man who is avowedly hostile. The one we can't guard against is the one who holds death in his hands without realizing it.

The saddest thing about that dreadful school tragedy in Texas is the fact that it was just one more of these didn't-know-it-was-loaded accidents.

The military court investigating the tragedy is told that the school authorities had tapped a line of "wet" gas in order to save some $250 or $350 a month in heating bills. A gas company official had warned that this might be dangerous; it had been thought that he was merely trying to drum up business for his own company, and the warning was forgotten.

X X X

THE school authorities who sanctioned this change estimable men—kindhearted, intelligent, devoted to the welfare of the community's children. Not for all the money in the world would any one of them willingly have placed those children's lives in peril.

But the accident did happen, nevertheless, and some 426 children were killed. The school authorities simply had in their hands a gun which they didn't know to be loaded. As so often happens in such cases, the gun went off.

Now before we begin to feel too superior to these men, let's draw a little parallel to this school tragedy.

An explosion killing 426 school children is a most dreadful thing—in time of peace. In time of war it would just be part of the game. With bombing planes dropping their eggs helter-skelter, it would be a poor week in which some school or other wasn't bombed. The Texas tragedy, in other words, would be duplicated over and over again in time of war.

And the thing to remember is that if we let our country get into a war, we—as individuals who expect one day to account for our sins before a Judge who knows the secrets of every heart—must share in the responsibility for such frightful catastrophes.

We wouldn't be thinking about it, of course, when the war fever stuck us. We wouldn't see the dusty wreckage or the helpless, torn bodies, or hear the pitiful cries, when the flags were fluttering in the wind and the orators were demanding that we defend the nation's honor. But the bombings would follow, inevitably—and all of us who consented to the war would have to share the responsibility.

X X X

THIS gun is loaded, in other words—loaded right up to the muzzle. Let's realize it, before it is too late. Let's understand just what is involved in all this easy talk of war. If this dreadful thing in Texas can lead us to such an understanding, then those poor youngsters won't have died in vain, after all.

Novel Stunt

THE gentleman in the soldiers' home at Los Angeles who has written a 50,000-word novel, complete with plot, characters, and conversation, without once using the letter "e," may not have added much to the world's great literature, but he has at least performed a literary stunt that must have looked almost impossible.

Try to write one ordinary sentence without using that letter, and see how hard it is. Then imagine writing a whole book that way, and you begin to get some idea of the difficulties involved.

And if someone objects that this bit of work must have been more stunt than novel it can only be said that the same thing is true of about two-thirds of the so-called novels that get published these days. Since most of them are written for almost any reason under the sun except the desire to create something of real literary merit, why isn't this Los Angeles man's motive as good as any?

Mosquito Breeding Places Should Be Stamped Out to Combat Malaria

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

(No. 181)

Malaria probably has destroyed more people and more nations than almost any other disease. It has been said that the downfall of the civilizations of Greece and Rome may be laid to malaria. Alexander the Great died in 323 B. C. after 10 days of fever. Theodosius, leader of the Goths who overthrew the civilization of Rome in 476 A. D., also died of malaria.

According to recent figures, the death rates for malaria in nine southern states varied from 17.2 in 1918 to 9.8 in 1926. For the whole United States, the figures average about 2.5 per 100,000 people.

Presumably enough now is known about the methods by which malaria is transmitted to make it possible for any community to stamp out the disease entirely if they wish to spend the necessary funds for the purpose.

Those who are sick with malaria must be protected from mosquito bites by various means. Places in which mosquitoes breed should be drained, and in places where water is caught in old tires, it should be drained.

Another way of destroying mosquitoes is to use all kinds of insecticides, and to keep the water in which they breed clean and free from fish and other animals which eat the larvae of the mosquito.

The malaria mosquito usually bites at dusk. In summer resorts where the population is mixed, people may come from many localities, and some may be infected with malaria. If these people and then others are bitten by mosquitoes, the malaria may be widely spread as the vacationists return to their homes in different parts of the country.

In malaria the chief reliance in treatment must be placed on quinine, a drug introduced in 1630 by the Countess of Cinchon, after whom its source is named. Quinine comes from the cinchona bark.

People who are constantly exposed to malaria in tropical areas take quinine every day, one hour before sunset, so as to have the protective drug in their blood should they happen to be bitten by a mosquito.

People in malarial areas also screen their beds at night and, if possible, keep the air moving with electric fans. They also wear suitable clothing and face nets to avoid being bitten.

There are many mosquito repellents in use, and these are definitely useful, though sometimes seem to help. Houses may be freed of mosquitoes by burning pyrethrum powder.

Quinine also is used in its various forms in the treatment of the disease.

Vigilance Is Best Home Fire Alarm

The unspeakable holocaust at New London could have been prevented, if the authorities had realized that danger lurked near or in the schoolhouse. But they evidently did not know.

How terrible it is, then, for us, who do know of potential dangers around our homes, to put off the hour of correction.

In the spring, with housecleaning and small repair jobs on our minds, all of us should make it a point to be on the side of safety.

First of all, I would like to suggest that any householder who smells the slightest trace of gas, and cannot locate the cause, get a plumber at once.

The yellow bark of the cinchona tree of Java and Bolivia contains more quinine than the bark of any other cinchona tree. Malaria, however, is such a serious condition that no one should even think of attempting self-treatment.

had gas pipes all through its walls. These were capped, when electricity was put in, and in some cases pipe ends had been thrust back into the walls and paped over. I smelled gas one day. The cause could not be found. The rest of the family didn't notice.

But I persevered and finally had experts go over each wall thoroughly. Sure enough, in the upper hall, the trouble was found.

Wouldn't Take "No"

In another house I had almost the same experience. One evening after dark, I got the gas company to send an investigator. Two skeptical youths appeared. They searched and smelled and tapped and shook their heads.

They were ready to depart. I held them. They stayed and went at it again. Finally one of them called, "We found it, lady. Look here." And there, also in the upper hall, a defective chandelier at the ceiling was throwing out a long blue flame. It

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MARTHA BRITAIN and BETTY HAYNES begin a trip up the west coast to demonstrate the new Airspeed trailer. They pick up GERRY NEAL, handsome young hitchhiker. Neal tells them he is to meet a friend, JACK SPEDDON, at the Long Beach auto camp. But at Long Beach, Neal disappears from the trailer and Speddon drives away with Betty, falling to return.

Frankly, Martha calls police, then to Sun Francisco. Betty will meet her at a San Francisco hotel. Next, Neal turns up again and tells Martha "this thing may be bigger" than she imagines.

Martha agrees to accompany Neal to Sun Francisco. She finds herself growing more and more interested in Neal. Betty, arriving in San Francisco, finds that neither Speddon nor Neal are registered at the designated hotel. Instead, Martha gets another letter, also presumably from Betty, advising everything is all right. Disturbed, Martha wants to call police but Neal protests that such a move might cause Betty's death! And that night Neal tells Martha he loves her.

CHAPTER XIII

THE manager of the Bridge Auto Park granted and turned over on his bed. But again there came that insistent knock at the door of his cottage—a knock which he had hoped might be part of a dream. Grumbling audibly, he climbed from his sheets, pulled on an ancient but serviceable bath robe, and shuffled to the door.

He was startled to see a rather breathless and very attractive young woman standing there. And he was more amazed yet when he recognized her as the young woman who had called earlier in the day. The young woman for whom he'd been holding that airmail letter from San Diego.

"I'm sorry to bother you at this time of night," Martha said. "But I want space for my coupe and trailer."

The man yawned. "There's a lot of it out there, lady. Just park anywhere and I'll talk to you in the morning."

"You see, I'm with the Airspeed Trailer Company. I'll be here two or three days."

"Showing off the trailer? That's okay, so long as you pay the regular rent. One fellow a while back figured his trailer ought to draw customers and he should get in here rent free."

"I intend to pay," Martha said. She reached into her bag.

"Never mind now. I don't like to lose sleep. See you in the morning."

The door slammed decisively, and Martha returned to the trailer. There were other cars and trailers in the camp, but she seemed to be the only tenant awake at this hour of the night.

PERHAPS, Martha told herself, she had been foolish to run away from the hotel and not wait until morning to come to the Bridge Auto Park. But when she had disengaged herself from Gerry Neal's arms and occupied into the solitude of her room she knew that she mustn't see him again. He would be telephoning in the morning, perhaps even that night—and she had to get away to think.

The Bridge Auto Park proved to be an excellent location for displaying the merits of the Airspeed. On one of the main arterials for both north and southbound traffic, it drew many a curious motorist attracted by the streamlined trailer. With these, as well as with the occupants of the auto park itself, Martha was kept busy. At the end of the day she had pointed out to scores of prospects, handed out as many advertising leaflets. And that night she made her report to Arnold Sloss, grateful for a task to keep her mind occupied.

That day and the next she stayed on at the Bridge Auto Park. Then, following Carrington's itinerary, she crossed the great bridge into Oakland and spent the day there.

The three days proved a tiresome grind, and at the close of the last Martha tumbled onto the made-up berth and dropped off to sleep almost instantly. When she opened her eyes the sun was streaming into the trailer. But it was not the sunshine which had awakened her. There had been a distant tapping at the rear window. Looking up she saw the smiling face of Gerry Neal.

"Breakfast ready?"

AT the sound of his voice Martha's heart rose in her throat and whirled there like a frightened quail. She knew in that magic moment that all along she had wanted him to follow her—and been afraid he might not. She knew that despite all her anger and all her suspicions, she had wanted to see him again.

Hurriedly she drew on her dressing gown, and went to the window.

"I'll wait 10 minutes," Gerry told her. "Just one cigaret."

"How did you know where to find me?"

Neal grinned. "You showed me

Man Kills Coyote With Bare Hands

Powerhouse in Montana Is Scene of Swift, Dramatic Struggle

THOMPSON FALLS, Mont.—(AP)—What happens when coyote meets man on narrow stairway? Plenty, two Montana Power company employees say.

Gus Johnson was descending a flight of stairs in the powerhouse when he saw a coyote half way up.

At that instant another worker Ed Fitzgerald, appeared at the bottom of the steps.

The coyote, trapped between the two men, leaped to a narrow ledge beside the stairs, lost its footing—and fell at Fitzgerald's feet.

Fitzgerald grappled the animal's legs as it snarled at him and then, to keep the coyote from biting him, began twisting it around and around.

This lasted for a half minute, while the coyote howled, and then Fitzgerald's arms began to tire. He could not let go for the coyote was snapping and snarling at him.

Finally he moved toward a concrete abutment, still twisting his load. The coyote lost interest in affairs when its head came in contact with a thump against the concrete. Then it was easy to dispose of the animal.

Fitzgerald and Johnson said it was a mystery how the coyote got into the powerhouse.

We once lived in an old house that was fixed in ten minutes.

This winter the flame under our water heater blew out one day. It never had before. I searched again for gas, as usual the only one who noticed it. Usually I am told it is my imagination, but three times now I have been right.

So fix up the gas pipes.

It is also not a season for bonfires and wind. I have lost two friends in my life who were tending innocent little fires in their yards.

Choose Safe Cleaning Fluids

As for cleaning fluids, never have any kind of explosive substance in the house.

After reading an article by the head of the fire commission in one of our cities, on the trickiness of gasoline and naphtha, I tried my daughter to throw out anything of the kind she had. She was amused, but I slept better. I knew her habit of cleaning small apparel in the house.

The click of a shoe on a floor nail may cause a spark and set off. Those who use gasoline to get old wax on polished floors should find something else, some compound marked "non-explosive."

What will explode on occasion, if mixed with air. Wrap it up and put it in an outside can. Oiled rags should not be kept in the house, or stacks of papers either dry or damp. In store rooms, give air spaces between boxes. Spontaneous combustion is absolutely unpredictable.

Today's Pattern

SUMMER's almost here and that means clothes for out-of-doors activities. The frock sketched (No. 8945) fills the bill. Make with a sheer wool skirt and lawn blouse, or both skirt and blouse could be made from one of the new cotton or silk prints. The pattern is in sizes 12 to 20; (30 to 38 bust). ## Monkey Business Pays Dividends in Filmland

HOLLYWOOD.—Comedy gags on movie stage are worth their weight in company morale and actual dramatic results in pictures. The best directors are the ones who know when, and how, to relieve their players' nervousness and tension with clowning.

If an actor becomes too deeply immersed in a role, and overacts, his director should know how to jolt him out of the mood with a laugh.

While Clark Gable was in the midst of his death scene in "Parnell," a photograph suddenly began blurring. "I'll Be Glad When You're Dead, You Rascal, You," Gable jumped, swore, then joined the company in a laugh. Director John Stahl had decided that Gable was becoming a little too somber, a shade melodramatic. Hence the jarring interruption.

During the filming of "Maytime," Director Robert Leonard made good use of a peppery young actor named Albert Morin. While not playing in various minor roles he was kept on the payroll as a ribber.

Went about insulting people, mostly by criticizing their acting. Gradually the players learned who he was, but for several weeks he provided a lot of valuable amusement.

Light Fun

W. S. Van Dyke is the fastest and one of the most successful directors in Hollywood, partly because he knows how to keep his players on their mettle with pokes.

One of his favorite tricks is arranging with an electrician, high in the rafters, to drop a breakaway spotlight. Some day you may read in the obituary columns of how Van Dyke stood under a falling spotlight and never guessed that it was a real one dislodged by accident.

Dead Game

In "Fifty Roads to Town," Ann Southern had to fire a revolver at the ceiling to prove that she was loaded.

Director Norman Taurog arranged a little surprise for her. A split second after she blazed away at the ceiling something flashed by her and fell at her feet with a thud. It was the limp body of a white rabbit.

While crew and players howled, Miss Southern discovered it was a stuffed bunny hurled from an overhead catwalk by an electrician.

Sometimes a director will take a long time to work out a gag. Two months before he was to begin directing Keye Luke in "Charlie Chan at the Olympics," Bruce Humphreys told the Chinese actor that he'd have to do some expert swimming in the picture.

And Luke couldn't swim. He took lessons two hours daily for six weeks. Got pretty good. Then he learned that his sole natural performance in the film was to emerge, dripping wet, from the end of a pool. When they shot the scene, the pool didn't even have water in it. A prop boy doused Luke with a bucket just before the camera began grinding.

Big Headache

The Ritz Brothers were pretty hard to handle when they came to Hollywood. They were always clowning on the sidelines and even in front of the camera; thought nothing of spilling a shot when they felt like ad libbing some unfilmable joke.

But Sidney Lanfield took it out of them. Maybe you recall that scene in "One in a Million" where all the brothers, in turn, have to bang their heads on the low rafters of a room. The director got the shot on the second take, but he didn't tell the Ritzes. Instead, he kept pretending that something had gone wrong, and for two solid hours he kept the dizzy actors whanging their noggin against those solid beams.

The boys haven't been quite the same since.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

Three Timely Times on Trailer Travel

If you happen to be wondering whether it might not be a good thing to give one of these new auto trailers a whirl this summer, you will find three extremely useful books available to help you make up your mind.

The first is "The Trailer Home," by Blackburn Sims (Longmans: $1.50). Mr. Sims, who remarks that there are too many "overnight or trip-to-Florida experts" on trailer travel, avers that his book is based on 150,000 miles of trailer travel, and he makes it a very readable little guide book.

He tells, for instance, how to select and equip a trailer, gives tips on the peculiarities of driving a car with trailer attached, discusses the selection of camp sites—and winds up by advising you not to try to build your own, no matter how handy you may be with tools. All in all, his book sounds exceedingly useful to one bitten with the trailer bug.

Another good one is "Trailers," by Freeman Marsh (Coward-McCann: $1.50). Mr. Marsh begins by stating that "unless you are one person in 10,000 the modern trailer can and will offer something which will add to the pleasures of your life." He offers much good advice on the way to buy a trailer, gives an elaborately complete directory of trailer manufacturers, lists all the trailer parks and camps in the country, and tells what facilities are available for trailers at the national parks and monuments.

The third book, also very good, is "Touring With Tent and Trailer," by Winfield A. Kimball and Maurice H. Decker (Whittlesey House: $2.50). This book devotes as much space to the tent as to the trailer, which is all to the good; it tells how to plan a tour, what sort of tent or trailer to buy, how to select camp equipment, what sort of clothes to take along, and so on. It also includes an excellent chapter on camp cookery.

Any or all of these three books should be highly useful to anyone who is contemplating a trip by trailer.

What though my dreams break on some round-bound shore And leave but fragments scattered on the sand Shall I be grieving for them evermore Or shall I bind them up with eager hands And laugh again, and dance again . . . and keep As souvenirs their broken wings, nor hide Their scars, nor be afraid Fate yet may sweep Them back to sea on some outgoing tide? Why should one fear the vague, on-coming years? If courage speak the final, dauntless word That puts the seal of silence on our fears? For I can tell you this: that I have heard A wondrous melody on Hope's last string, Seen Winter's stormy grip give way to spring!—Selected.

The Junior Senior-High P. T. A. will meet Thursday afternoon at 3 at the high school. "Adolescence" will be the subject under discussion.

The April meeting of Circle 1, W. M. S., First Methodist, Mrs. John P. Cox, leader, was held at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Spencer, South Greening street, with Mrs. H. H. Stuart and Mrs. W. T. Gorman as assistant hostesses. Mrs. Erwin Ward opened the meeting by reading one of Margaret E. Sangster's beautiful, "Little Letters to God," so appropriate for this springtime meeting. Mrs. T. S. Turner brought a very helpful devotional. A report of the first quarter's work was given. The pastor, Rev. Fred R. Harrison made a special announcement of plans for "The Bishop's Crusade" program, which will be held on April 23. Following the reading of the minutes, dues were collected closing the regular business period. The program on "The Origin and Purpose of the Bishop's Crusade" was presented as follows: Mrs. Ernest O'Neal gave interesting facts as recorded by today's workers. Mrs. C. C. Presley gave a most instructive talk on "The Crusade of the Crusade." Mrs. Smith Davenport presented a poster introducing new and many familiar workers in foreign fields—among them, some who had gone out from the Little Rock Conference. During the social hour, sandwiches, ices and cakes were served to 17 members.

The Young Mother's Circle of the First Methodist church met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. D. Franklin on South Main street with Mrs. D. V. Whitley assistant leader in charge. Early in the meeting the circle was glad to have a surprise visit by the pastor, Rev. Fred R. Harrison, who discussed The Bishop's Crusade. Mrs. Eugene Hall gave the devotional and a program on "How Can We Teach Christian Living." During the social hour the hostess served a delicious salad plate to 13 members and 6 children.

Florida Plans to Rehome Land

Governor Proposes to Distribute Free All Tax-Foreclosed Land

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — (AP) — Gov. Fred D. Cone proposed that vast areas of Florida's land be thrown open to homesteading in his message to the legislature Tuesday. Seventeen million acres of land, about half Florida's total area, are off the tax rolls due to tax delinquencies he said, representing a value of $100,000,000.

"This land is not doing the state any good in its present condition," the governor said. "It is not being taxed."

He recommended that a law be passed authorizing the Internal Improvement Board of Trustees to "settle title to all these lands in the name of the state of Florida for the benefit of the state, and allow the citizens of our state, heads of families, to homestead these lands as homes for our people under such terms and conditions as you may decide."

Florida has a constitutional provision exempting from taxation homesteads up to $5,000 assessed valuation. This law removed $60,000,000 of taxable property from the rolls. The problem of returning tax delinquent land to a revenue-producing status is regarded as a major problem for the lawmakers.

At present only federal land may be homesteaded in Florida. The state Department of Agriculture said settlers or squatters on state-owned land under present law "are trespassers and will be prosecuted as such."

Parts of the delinquent lands were laid out as sub-divisions during the Florida boom 10 years ago. Some have streets and perhaps a community building, but no homes were built. During the wild scramble of boom days titles became hopelessly tangled in many instances.

Gas Well Revenue

LANCASTER, Ohio. — (AP) — This city has been running its government on gas for 50 years and is still doing so profitably. A city council report for the first two months of 1937 shows a profit of $16,572 from 74 municipally owned wells.

Since 1887 when the city first took over and consolidated several privately owned natural gas well companies, the profits have provided funds for erection of an elaborate municipal building and a good income for operation of government.

Will Quit At 100

TOKYO. — (AP) — Japan claims to have the oldest active teacher in the world. She is Ayaka Tanabashi, 99. Madame Tanabashi is principal of Tokyo Girls' high school, which she founded.

"When my 100th birthday comes," she says, "I will resign my post, but until then I will be at my desk every day."

A lecturer on practical ethics Madame Tanabashi says the morals of Japanese girls must change with the times. She extolls the beauty of the kimono, but admits foreign-style clothes are more convenient for girls, who have to be more active now than in older days.

"Yes, sir," was the answer. "I'm thankful to say I've outlived them all."

An Open Letter to a Hit-And-Run Driver

WELL, you got away with it. So far, anyway. Of course you're still a bit nervous. You are startled by doorbells; your palm sweats when you pick up the morning paper; your mouth gets dry when a stranger seems to stare at you. For there is just a possibility that some chance passer-by saw you. But your pulse is beginning to behave again. Each passing day brings added safety.

If it will make you feel any better, you may never be caught. But, my craven fellow, you'll never escape yourself! You'll never escape the shame of having killed a child and run away. You'll never escape the aching, burning memory that, faced with the test, you preferred cowardice to courage.

You will live the rest of your days blushing yourself into believing that you didn't have time to think (although life's crises are not scheduled for men's convenience); that anybody else would have done the same thing (although you don't dare tell anybody else); and that it wasn't murder, but just an accident (as though people hid themselves after accidents). The days will be trying, but not so bad compared with the nights, when you lie awake with your conscience and when, having fallen asleep at last, dreams steal into your tired brain to react that scene of secret shame. Yes, the nights will be hard.

A thousand times you will wish to release that pent-up shame, to scream: "I killed a child and ran away!" It would make you feel better, but you won't do it.

Listen: You didn't get away with a thing! And you know it!

O'Steen Vs. L. & A. Case Is on Trial

Circuit Court Interrupted by Chancellor Bacon's Illness

A damage suit brought by Bernard O'Steen of Hope against the L. & A. Railroad company for alleged injuries in an automobile-train crash last May was the only case being heard in circuit court at Washington Wednesday. O'Steen is asking $2,500.

The case began shortly after 9 a. m. Wednesday, but was interrupted by news that Chancellor Judge Pratt P. Bacon had been stricken ill at Texarkana. Judge Bacon's daughter was serving as court stenographer, and left immediately for Texarkana.

Another court stenographer was obtained and the case was resumed at 1:30 p. m. Several witnesses had testified at 3 p. m. The case is expected to go to the jury late in the afternoon.

The automobile-train crash occurred at about a mile and half south of Hope last May. O'Steen is represented by W. S. Atkins. Steve Carrigan is representing the railroad.

New York Group Gets Reo Control

Frank Vanderlip and Son Claim Majority in Auto Concern

NEW YORK. — (AP) — Frank Vanderlip, Jr., said Tuesday that he and his father, former head of the National City bank of New York, and a group of Eastern capitalists have acquired a substantial interest in Reo Motor Car Co., Lansing, Mich., and will demand representation on the Board of Directors.

Young Vanderlip said several substantial holders of stock had been approached in advance of the annual shareholders' meeting April 20. Their holdings, together with those of the Vanderlip group, were reported sufficient to give control. Books for recording shareholders' preliminary to the meeting will be closed Friday. The company has 1,800,000 shares of $5 par value stock outstanding.

tatorship under fascism or communism. They seem to believe that a powerful throne is an asset in those perilous days. The Belgians don't want any dictator, but should it become necessary for them to have one, it will be the king of the present political bosses have their say.

Served in War

When King Edward raised his head a bit and tried to be a little more of a king than prescribed by Hoyle, ultra-conservative Premier Stanley Baldwin and his cabinet used the big stick on the free-thinking ruler. He seceded from his difficulty by abdicating.

Leopold II of Belgium was catapulted into the kingship in 1934 through the sudden death by accident of his father, King Albert. He had traveled extensively, his trips including the Belgium Congo and the Dutch East Indies. And he speaks French, Flemish, German, Italian, English and Swedish.

He had served through the World war as a common soldier, thereby acquiring a close acquaintance with his people and endearing himself to them. When he was 25 he had become a senator, and frequently had taken the floor to discuss weighty subjects among the grey haired members of that august body.

People Like Him

The reception accorded him recently during a visit to the miners of the Black country, was the most enthusiastic of its kind ever witnessed in Belgium. It was an endless ovation from the workers and their families.

Leopold inspected new works which are under way to protect homes against river floods and sinking ground. In at least one instance he took up a complaint and, after investigation, promised to have the trouble righted.

It was almost an identical thing which had much to do with driving Edward to abandon his throne. He visited the impoverished Welsh coal fields and promised the miners relief. His handling of the matter was such that he embarrassed his cabinet. It was this move which did much to convince the British government that Edward was potentially a dangerous proposition.

Rural electrification allotments totaling $1,685,000 are being used to build 1,838 miles of electric distribution lines to serve rural customers in Oklahoma.

AT THE THEATERS

Action, international intrigue and romance in generous portions keep "The Girl From Scotland Yard," which comes Thursday and Friday to the Rialto moving at a swift pace. The picture has plenty of thrills and chills, some excellent comedy, and a flavoring of music.

The story presents Karen Morley in the title role as an agent who uses her beauty and wit to trap the inventor of a death ray who threatens to destroy England's air force with his invention. Since the ray is operated at a distance and is invisible, it is not an easy job that confronts her.

Miss Morley is assisted in tracking down the inventor by Robert Baldwin, an American newspaper man who gets involved in the intrigue when he falls in love with the beautiful secret agent. He and Miss Morley succeed in trapping the inventor, but not before the latter wrecks several bombing planes in a thrilling aerial battle high over London.

STORIES IN STAMPS

BY I. S. KLEIN
LITERARY DIPLOMAT OF HUNGARY

EARLY in his career, Maurus Jokai, Hungarian youth, was schooled in law, and although he soon turned to literature he later made use of his legal training in politics and diplomacy.

Jokai, born in 1825, participated in the revolution of 1848 with both pen and sword. He wrote fiery articles while he fought for Hungarian independence. After the revolution came innumerable essays, criticisms, and books, which led to Jokai's popularity as an author. In 1867, he began taking a more active part in politics. He founded and edited the government publication. In 1897, Emperor Franz Joseph made him a member of the upper house of the Hungarian legislature. He died in 1904, at the age of 79. His portrait appears on stamps issued by Hungary in 1925, on the centenary of his birth.

Travelers to Play Exhibition Game

Will Oppose Philadelphia Athletics at Little Rock Wednesday

LITTLE ROCK.—With a month of training behind them, Manager Prothro will match his Little Rock Travelers against the Philadelphia Athletics in the first exhibition game of the season at Travelers Field at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon.

Bob Porter, Lake City right-hander, will open for Little Rock with Byron Humphreys scheduled to follow. Dick Midkiff, towering right-hander, recently optioned here by the Boston Red Sox, may also see action.

Aubrey Graham, promising rookie infielder, will be at second base instead of Al Niemiec. The former Holy Cross star pulled a muscle during Tuesday's intra-club game and was ordered by the doctor to take it easy for the next several days. It is hoped that Niemiec will be ready to play against the New York Yankees Saturday and Cleveland Indians Sunday.

The infield includes Jack O'Neill at first base, Graham at second, Bumby Griffiths at short and Jim Tabor or Sammy Liberty at third. In the outfield will be Art Graham in left, Leo Nomenkamp in center and Glenn Chapman in right.

Ray (Happy) Thompson and Dave Coble are the catchers.

Connie Mack, veteran manager of the Athletics, wrote Prothro that he expected to start Harry Kelley, former Southern Association star, with possibly Almon Williams of the 1936 Atlanta Crackers, next on the mound.

Besides a large squad of pitchers, the A's spring roster includes three catchers, eight infielders and five outfielders. Better known of the infielders are Alfred Dean, Lamar Newsome, Bill Werber and Russell Peters. Philadelphia boasts a fine outfield in Bob Johnson, Lou Finney and Wally Moses.

Giants Respect Bob Feller

NEW YORK.—(NEA)—Here's what the New York Giants, National League champions, had to say about youthful Bob Feller, Cleveland's American League pitching sensation, after battling against him in an exhibition game:

BURGESS WHITEHEAD: I never battled against anything like Feller throw. Not even Dean at his fastest can throw with this kid.

CARL HUBBELL: I was curious to see him. Now I'm satisfied. He's a pitcher.

DICK BARTELL: It is only March and he may be faster later on, but from what I have seen Van Mungo is faster.

GUS MANCUSO: I was surprised at his control. I imagined he was erratic and uncertain.

JOE MOORE: Feller? He'll win plenty for the Indians.

JIMMY RIFFLE: He isn't as fast as Mungo, but his ball is alive. It does things that makes it hard to hit.

HARRY DANNING: Feller has the stuff. He'll make it.

FRED FITZSIMMONS: He will be a great pitcher.

Mack Is Counting on Harry Kelley

Predicts Arkansas Pitcher to Have Good Season in 1937

Associated Press Writer

Connie Mack counts heavily on Harry Kelley, the big right-hander who came up with the 1936 A's as a 30-year-old rookie and won 15 games for the tail-end Philadelphia team before appendicitis cut him down in August.

Kelley was a long time getting a thorough test in the big show, but he was one of the last season's sensations. When no other big league club wanted to take a chance on Kelley, because of his age, Connie Mack picked up a prize.

Washington tried Kelley in 1925 and 1926, decided he was not ready. The Giants bought him from Memphis two years later but, after spring training, turned him back. Perhaps the fact that Washington and McGraw had passed him up caused other managers and scouts to ignore him. At any rate, Kelley was buried in the Southern league and it was not until 1935 when the Giants, badly in need of (winning) talent at the flag end of the pennant race, made a bid for the burly pitcher. Atlanta also needed him, set such a high figure that New York lost interest.

Kelley Has Everything
Mack remarked, during the early part of last year's campaign, that he did not understand why Kelley had not been sold or drafted earlier in his career.

"Kelley has everything a big league pitcher needs," said the dean of managers. "He may not have the fastest ball or the best curve in the big league but he has enough. The reason for his effectiveness is that he is a smart pitcher. Few big leaguers are smarter. He has a great memory and never forgets what sort of pitch a batter hit safely on a previous occasion. He rarely makes the same mistake twice."

A Flood Hero
His appendicitis robbed Kelley of a grand opportunity to win 20 games in his first full season as a major leaguer. That was well within sight. But Harry is used to bad breaks. A ball player with less courage would have given up hope of ever making the major as the years rolled by.

Kelley has more than one man's share of courage. He proved that in many a torrid baseball campaign. Recently, when flood waters caused such havoc, he was one of the heroes of the flooded St. Francis river section. His two speed boats chugged out on the high waters rescuing the stranded. He continued on his errands of mercy as long as the crisis existed. Loss of sleep and badly blistered hands were nothing as long as there was need to carry on rescue work.

He'll Tell Tall Tales

PITTSBURGH—Big Jim Weaver, 340-pound six-foot six-inch Pittsburgh pitcher, wants to be a radio announcer.

Junior High, Oglesby to Play Football Game

A football game between students of Junior High School and Oglesby school will be played Friday afternoon at the Oglesby school, Zeland Holly of the WPA recreational council announced.

The Junior team is coached by Charles Parker. The Oglesby school is coached by Holly, with W. D. Oliver as captain of the team.

Holly announced that an athletic program of baseball and softball would be started next week among the students.

National Leaguers Work Shortest Time

ORLANDO, Fla.—The Washington Nationals take the shortest training workouts of all the major league teams. They work only two hours daily.

The St. Louis Gas House Gang have the most work. They bat and field and run around three hours twice a day—once in the morning, and once in the afternoon.

Inventors' Trick—Up the Sleeve

If you're confused, think how a fly or mosquito would feel at getting tangled up in these fringed veil sleeves, made to protect legs from insect bites. The sleeves were among the many more or less wondrous contraptions at the National Inventors' Congress in Chicago. Perhaps they enhance the appearance—perhaps not.

Hitters, Fielders Needed by Phillies

New Recruits May Help Team Climb Out of Cellar

This is the 12th of a series about major league training camps and 1937 prospects.

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service
WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—"There is one thing about this year's Phillies," remarked Hans Lobert. "They have a fine spirit. There isn't a man among them who wouldn't go to blazes for Jimmy Wilson."

"That is excellent. Hans," cut in Wilson, who happened to overheard his knowledgeable third base coach's declaration of loyalty, "but I wish they'd go as far for me in the opposite direction. They've been going a long way for me for three seasons—a long way down to seventh and eighth place."

What Lobert meant to say was that all of the Phillies are squarely in back of Wilson except Adolph Camilli, outstanding star of a scraggly cast. Camilli wants to be paid for being simply crazy about his manager. President Gerry Nugent asserts that the San Francisco first baseman asks three and a half times what he drew for batting .315 and driving in 102 runs in 1936.

Nugent explains that he gave the Italian a near increase which would make him the highest-salaried first sacker in the National League, now that Bill Terry of the Giants no longer is considered an active combatant. But Camilli remains in California.

It is suspected that Camilli has an idea that neither Johnny McCarthy nor Sambo Leslie will satisfy Terry and that he hopes to land with the more affluent Polo Grounds.

The Phillies won only 54 games last season and you can imagine what they would be like without Camilli's big home run stick in the batting order.

Keystone Pair Fall

Everything happens to the Phillies. It always does to a last-place outfit.

The second basing combination turned out to be a bust last season. Leo Norris couldn't throw well enough at shortstop and Chis Gomer was an All-American out at second base.

Everybody batted left-handed except Pinky Whitney, Catchers Wilson and Bill Atwood, and Gomez, and it so happens that Whitney and Wilson prefer right-handers. Anyway, the Phillies were southpawed to death.

The Phillies, on the other hand, had no southpaw pitcher.

Wilson hopes these matters have been straightened out, but will have no way of knowing until the clubs start playing for keeps. He is dubious to say the least. After all, he is banking on untold major league talent and minor league culs at that.

Wilson has high hopes for Tom Schreiner, a 6-foot, 23-year-old shortstop who came from Nashville in the deal that sent Lou Chiozza to the Giants. Schreiner can field and throw and drove in 96 runs while hitting .288 for the Volunteers.

At second base will be either Del Young, who hit .298 for Oklahoma City or Bill Andrus, who compiled a .307 average for Little Rock.

Andrus is obtaining his first major league trial at 29, although he has been a consistent .300 hitter in nearly every loop he's visited. Among his baseball alma maters are Tyler, Tex., Milne, Terre Haute, Decatur, Shreveport, Chattanooga and Little Rock.

Andrus is typical of the new talent that annually trickles into the Philadelphia National League camp after every other club in the big show has had its pick.

Third base is in the competent hands of Whitney, Gene Corbett, a 190-pound kid who batted .330 and hit in 45 runs for Hazleton in 138 games, is filling in at first base during the absence of Camilli. Norris is to be carried as an extra infielder and a pinch-hitter.

Chuck Klein is about 15 feet slower in the outfield and has lost at least part of that extra step in going to first base, but is happy back in Baker Bowl, and certainly won't do the outfield harm.

Wilson is counting upon Hershel Martin, a switch hitter, to play corner field. Martin is a lively ground coverer biographically as well as in the outfield, having split a five-year minor league preparatory course among Monroe, Springfield, Mo., Elmira, Bloomington, and Houston.

The Cardinals giving up on him was no recommendation for Martin. Neither was his inability to bat more than .200 and hit in no more than 71 runs as a Texas League outfielder.

Johnny Moore will play left field, but all hands may experience trouble keeping Morris Aronovich, a hustling Jewish lad from Superior, Wis., in the dugout. Aronovich, a right-handed batter who hits the ball for magnificent distances, batted .327 and drove in 109 runs in 137 games with Hazleton.

The fifth flycatcher is Fred Tauby, who was inspected by the White Sox a couple of springs back and who compiled a .211 average with Dallas.

The Phillies will have good catching, with Bob Grace lined up in back of Wilson and Atwood.

Wilson says that four of his pitchers are at the stage and have it in them to blossom into stardom simultaneously.

They are Bucky Walters, Claude Passeau, Joe Bowman, and Orville Jorgens. He calls Sylvester Johnson the finest relief worker in the league. Hugh Mulcahy batted .25 games for Hazleton.

Harold Kelleher, the Philadelphia sandlotter who appeared so promising a year ago, but who pulled a muscle in his back in hitting fungoes and was useless practically all season, seems to have picked up where he left off when he was injured.

Pete Sivess reported with his arm tied up. When criticized for doing

Netting Smelt Through 'Claim' Holes Cut in Ice

The smelt run was at its height when these fishermen chopped holes through the ice on the Ford river, near Escanaba, Mich., and hauled out the smelt in nets. Usually the ice is out before the finny midgets start their annual run, but this year the fishermen had to stake claims and cut through the ice to harvest the annual "cron."

Peanut Pitcher to Big Leagues

Sutak Develops a Peg After Slinging 210,000 Goobers

DENVER.—(P)—Sutak probably would make more money tossing peanuts than baseballs but the "big league itch" has got him. He is off to the training camps.

Sutak (Sutak—two sacks, no sales—with Sutak) can throw a 5-cent bag of peanuts from the basketball floor to the second gallery of the city auditorium and land it in the lap of a customer.

He charges 5 cents for the peanuts and a nickel extra for putting a curve on his pitch.

The curve is as perfect a one as ever cut the corner of home plate.

Nope, No First Name

Sutak, who says he has no first name (the boys call him Jack) would have you believe the scouts signed him up when they saw him pitching peanuts into the top row of the Denver university stadium last football season. Probably they saw him in a Colorado college baseball uniform last spring. He was an all-conference centerfielder.

The peanut-vending business will lose a colorful figure if he makes good with Winston-Salem in the Piedmont league, but baseball will hear some wisecracks.

"Nuts to you for a nickel," says he to sports audiences. "Delivered by air express, collect."

At the A. A. U. basketball tournament in the city auditorium his biggest profits came from the second gallery. But Sutak never left the main floor.

"It's tagged for the gent in the black suit," he would shout as he shot a fast one upward.

Invariably the sack of peanuts would land in the customer's lap.

He Lost a Nickel—Once

Once there was a customer who held his hat over his face.

"Hit it," he said.

Sutak was a little slow with his pitch and the customer pulled his hat away to see what was causing the delay.

The bag of nuts hit him on the nose.

Customers throw nickels and dimes from the top gallery to the main floor.

"In three years I lost only one nickel," Sutak claims.

Frequently he catches a nickel in each hand simultaneously.

There are about 35 peanuts in a bag. Sutak sold 6,000 bags, 210,000 peanuts, at the week-long A. A. U. tournament.

"Those 6,000 pitches put my arm in good shape," he avers.

After this workout he left for his tryout with the Winston-Salem team, a Detroit Tiger farm.

heavy work during the winter that brought this on, Sivess explained that he had to live. Nobody had an answer for that. The large right-hander stepped right from Dickinson College last June to win three games while losing that of his club.

This trip Wilson at least has two pitchers who throw left-handed. They are Bobby Burke, who spent his twenties with Washington and celebrated his 30th birthday by signing with the Phillies, and Wayne LaMaster, a sturdy little veteran who has been a lot of places between 1926, when he started with New Orleans, and last winter when the Phils drafted him from Louisville.

The remainder of the 18 pitchers in the Phils' camp are kids, Wilson having come to the conclusion that he must develop his own pitchers.

"And if I ever get a staff it will be a shame to bring it into the Philadelphia park," explained Wilson. "I've seen five pop flies bounce off the right field wall in one game."

"Why, frequently I've had to take out pitchers who were very effective. I simply couldn't let those pop flies bounce off that wall all afternoon. Something had to be done about it, so I came a pitcher who would have been shutting out the Giants, Cardinals, or Cubs in any other major league park."

The fettle Phils. No prospects of getting anywhere, and nothing much to look forward to even if they do.

The PAYOFF

By HARRY GRAYSON

Sports Editor, NEA Service

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—He stood there watching his Phillies, who appear more futile than ever. Perhaps Jimmy Wilson was thinking of happier days with the World Champion Cardinals, and wondering why he took on the Philadelphia headcase in the first place.

"What kind of a club have you this trip?" I asked Wilson.

"Ask Hans," replied the famous catcher, as though he hadn't the heart to properly describe the Phils of 1937. Anyway, bowlegged Hans Lobert, the third base coach, ankleed up, and started to tell about the time he picked Mike Donlin off third base.

"I was breaking in with the Cubs and the Giants were calling me 'Bush,' and there was Donlin, and Johnny Kling putting on the play by throwing a handful of dust in front of the plate. Three-Fingered Brown wasted one, and we nipped Donlin with feet to spare."

"Turkey Mike threw a fit and hopped all over me, and John McGraw, coaching at third base, won my admiration by remarking, 'Stand your ground, kid.' That was the start of our long friendship. Ah, there was a man, John McGraw."

But we wanted to know about the Phils.

"I feel sorry for Jimmy Wilson," asserts Lobert. "He'll tell you that he doesn't worry, but he does and the situation is so hopeless. Patsy O'Rourke combs the minors and come in with what is left after every other scout in the business has had his pick."

"If we do get going well in June, and have an outstanding player, we have to sell him to one of the wealthier outfits before the deadline in order for Gerry Nugent to meet the payroll. That has been going on since the Philadelphia days of Grover Alexander, Bill Killefer, and Dave Bancroft. Alex and Killefer went to the Cubs, Bancroft to the Giants, and bringing it more up to date, Chuck Klein to the Cubs, and last season Curt Davis and Ethan Allen to the same club."

Last Nine Times

The Phils have finished in the first division just once, in 1919 campaign—in 1922, when they changed in fourth. In those 18 years, seven wound up eighth nine times, seventh on five occasions, six three times, and fifth once.

It strikes me that the Philadelphia club is as much of a problem for the National League as were the erstwhile Boston Braves during the last days of Judge Emil Fuchs.

I don't know just how much longer Nugent can carry on, but he seems to be prospering in the face of an announcement that the club has lost money for the last several seasons. Nugent declares that the club is not for sale, explaining that at his age he wouldn't know what to do out of baseball.

Two men who played important roles in the Philadelphia Nationals' one brief run of glory watched the club with me at Winter Haven. They were the ancient and honorable William (Cap) Neal, vice president and big boss of the Louisville club and his manager, Bert Niehoff.

Niehoff played second base for the Philadelphia Nationals' only flag-winner of the modern game—in 1915, and Neal, then scouting for the Phils, purchased Bancroft from the Portland Coasters, after the late Walter McCredie had advised the Cleveland club, with which he was working that Benny wouldn't hit major league pitching.

"McCredie didn't think much of Bancroft's hitting and told me that I didn't want him for Philadelphia. 'The fellow you want is my second baseman, Bill Rodgers,' said McCredie. 'No, Bancroft is the boy I want,' I advised him, saying, 'If you think so little of Bancroft's hitting, you can't want much for him,' and McCredie closed for $2000 and a couple of $500 infielders."

Meanwhile, a large young Nebraskan had gone to Philadelphia from Syracuse. His name was Grover Cleveland Alexander.

Team of Managers

Alexander's pitching and Bancroft's brilliant shortstopping swept the Phillies to their only pennant, and the club was good enough to finish second for the next two seasons.

The last collection of winning Phils was quite a club. No less than 11 of them became managers—Killefer, Cactus Cravath, Bancroft, Niehoff, Fred Luderus, George Whitted, Milton Stock, Al Demaree, Catcher Jack Adams, Bobby Byrne, Ben Tincup and Eskine Mayer. Killefer, Niehoff, Stock and Whitted still are active as minor league pilots.

The Phils will have to build a farm system and then a ball club and get out of Baker Bowl in order to make money.

Baker Bowl, the show thing of baseball 40 years ago, now is an eyesore. It was the first park with cantilever stands and the first surrounded by a brick or stone wall.

While the capacity of Baker Bowl, 18,500 is much too much for the Phils of these years, day in and day out, it is next to impossible for a major league club to make money with such limited seating arrangements, and Nugent explains that the cost of double-decking the bleachers is prohibitive.

It repeatedly has been suggested that the Phils play at the vastly more modern Shibe Park, home of the Athletics, but Nugent says that perpetual lease on Baker Bowl prevents this. He explains that if the switch was made, the Phils simply would have an extra park on their hands in addition to paying rental to Connie Mack & Co.

But the Phils are a disgrace to a major league, and something should be done about them for the benefit of all hands.

Missouri Marksmen Shade William Tell

COLUMBIA, Mo.—(P)—William Tell, the apple-splitting bow and arrow marksman of legendary fame, would have stiff competition from modern rifle team sharpshooters at the University of Missouri. Tiger varsity marksmen won all but six of their first 78 contests. Co-eds were victorious in all 21 matches fired—which wasn't so difficult, as Blanche Boyd shot perfect scores in every match.

Cornhusker Cagers Set Big Six Record

NORMAN, Okla.—(P)—Nebraska's high-school basketball team displaced the Oklahoma Sooners this season as the highest scoring Big Six Quintet. The rugged Cornhuskers hung up a new game average of 32.87 points for the nine years the league has existed.

Adams Is Elected Texarkana Coach

Vernon A. Adams to Succeed J. E. Willis at Junior College

TEXARKANA, Tex.—(P)—The Texarkana (Texas) School Board announced Tuesday night election of Vernon A. Adams as director of athletics at Texarkana College, succeeding J. E. Willis, resigned.

Horseshoe Hurlers Are Now Recognized

GOLDEN, Colo.—(P)—The lad who thinks there is no sport in the world like horseshoe pitching has won recognition at the Colorado School of Mines. Intramural horseshoe teams have been formed. This is but another sign of the flexible athletic program at the mining institution which has the only soccer team in the Rocky Mountain conference and one of the few hockey teams.

Shhh! Not a Word

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Ossie Solomon, new coach of the University of Syracuse football team, has told his players that he doesn't want to hear the word "Colgate" until the week before the annual game. Syracuse hasn't defeated Colgate since 1924.
